REASIDE VALUE:

Caring

Macmillan Coffee afternoons

The children enjoyed decorating cakes ready for our Macmillan Coffee afternoon's. Thank you to all of the children who helped get stuck in with creating lots of beautiful cakes. We would also like to thank all parents/carers who came to show their support and help raise money for Macmillan. Please watch out for our total amount raised, in next week's newsletter.

Well done Safrana!

On Saturday 28th September Safrana in Year 5 had her hair cut. The hair was donated to make a wig for a child suffering hair loss through cancer. Safrana also raised money for 'Matt's Mission - making children's smiles glow'. Should anybody wish to make a donation, please see any of the Year 5 staff who will pass on your contributions. Safrana received a tee shirt, a trophy, a medal and a Tiara for her generous act. We are so very proud of her for supporting such a worthy cause.

Congratulations to Mr and Mrs Kemp

Mr Kemp is currently on paternity leave. We look forward to catching up with him after half term.

Congratulations everyone on the achievement of the IQM Inclusive School Award 2019-2022

Leaders are skilled at identifying school priorities including how to support pupils who have special educational needs and/or disabilities, are disadvantaged or have a safeguarding and pastoral need. They dig deep into the personal circumstances of each child, to personalise the support to be most impactful. Deprivation and difference were never used as an excuse for underachievement, on the contrary, pupils were confident and self-motivated and flourishing due to their personalised learning experiences. Pupils reported with astute confidence that they felt safe in school and knew how to keep themselves safe in the outside world, including e-safety.

The pupils were observed to be exceptionally eager to learn, and enjoy their lessons, and positive relationships with their teachers were evident in every greeting. The learning behaviour is good and pupils take a consistent pride in their work. If individuals fall below the expectation, there are teams with interventions to help put them back on track. There is a culture of restorative justice: support, not punish, which created an environment where mistakes were not feared. Teachers, parents and pupils described developing resilience in order to take ownership of their learning, but this could only be achieved with the stabilisation of the focussed leadership.

Those with special needs were not easily distinguishable as teaching assistants moved fluidly around the room and school, offering an additional layer of personalised support. There are rigorous systems for assessment and evaluating the effectiveness of provision mean that pupils' needs are quickly identified. Those children with additional needs are assessed and staff resources are deployed to support pupils particularly those with SEN and disadvantaged pupils. Provision is regularly reviewed and adjusted according to need, in a continuous cycle of assess, plan, do, review. Reaside collaborates extremely effectively with outside agencies which offer additional support for the high number of pupils with need, and this, alongside the dedicated school staff, ensure a high quality of pastoral care.

There are many additional opportunities for pupils to develop and be valued, as part of the Reaside community. Pupils could explain the anti-bullying and behaviour policy and children had a good understanding of what bullying is and how to deal with it as a result of anti-bullying week and value assemblies. I met with members of the school council who truly believed their voice was heard and that they asserted power through the School Council/EcoTeams where they have recorded a number of successful actions. This included a very effective campaign directed at the local council to improve the safety of the road directly outside the school and a pupil led behaviour contract. The outside learning environments such as the Forest school growing projects, including a flower and vegetable garden.

I am of the opinion that the school fully meets the standard required by the Inclusion Quality Mark. I recommend that the school be awarded the Mark and be reassessed in 3 years' time. #Helloyellow Day - 9th October 2019

In support of #Helloyellow pupils and staff wore yellow to raise awareness for children and young people's mental health. We started the day with a whole school assembly and throughout the day, each class had a mental health workshop focusing on positive wellbeing and positive thinking delivered by Real Talk Theatre Group. We hope the children had a good day and keep on talking about mental health and well-being!

Reminder - School dinner/trip payments

When handing in school dinner money and/or trip payments, please could you make sure that it's the correct change and in a sealed envelope with your child's name and class written on it. Thank you
